Battlefield 3 features the new Armature animation, which.Q: Is there any way to automatically split/cycle through text file lines to separate words? I'm using Python 3.2.3 with a Windows7 development machine. I have a text file that's about 4.4MB, nearly 50,000 lines of text that I need to parse/split into individual words/tokens. Ideally, I'd like to find a way to automatically go through the file and split all the words, regardless of what position they are in the original sentence. The lines in the text file look like: UserName: "Georg" UserID: "33454" ID: "23432" Username: "mary" etc, etc The original text file that I'm parsing comes from a JSON feed that is initially loaded into a variable. Some of the text is directly usable, and some requires modification, like the following: Username: "Mary Kay" ID: "34454" UserName: "Georg" ID: "3432" Username: "Mary" I want to go through the file line by line, and split the lines into usable words/tokens, and if it's a new word/token, split that into usable tokens. "UserName:" should become ["UserName", "Georg"] "UserID" should become ["UserID",
