I have downloaded this soft and i can't run it on my win 7 pro PC which have 3.1gHZ processor.I have downloaded this soft from and i can't open it and show me error when i run on my system. I have tried even installed it with un installed windows (as my pc is without the that virus). what should i do so that i can run this software?? A: Is it possible that this may be a legitimate win 7 32 bit program and that you just installed a legitimate install of it? It looks like this software may also be a trojan virus. If you are sure that it was downloaded from www.softonic.com and you are sure that you have installed this software correctly. You can also download the portable version of the program, which is less than 200 megabytes and that will run on all your devices. Q: Is there a way to "re-draw" a Mathematica plot of zero-frequency response in the time domain? I am trying to plot the (time domain) spectrum of a signal that is an exponentially decaying step function. In order to do so, I want to plot the response function as it would be in the time domain, by plotting the spectrogram of the signal. I know that the spectrogram of a step function is zero, but it doesn't seem to me that the discrete Fourier Transform (itself a discrete, Hilbert-Transform in Mathematica) of the step function will work. Do I need to use the `scipy.signal.ampc` function? I have checked and the function of the given type is actually included in that code. (The `scipy` official documentation mentions that the FFT has essentially the same attributes as the ampc function, but that is all it says.) Here is the code that works for me (the plot on the right comes from a concrete example):

N[x_, k_] := k x;
x[0] = 1; Plot[ {x[n], Abs[X]}, {n, 0, 100}, PlotRange -> All, PlotLegends
-> {"x(t), |X[f]|^2/f", "x(t), abs(X[f])/f 3e33713323
