This can also be used to repair a system that cannot be booted from the operating system.[8][9] Serial numbers are usually printed in either the first area of the motherboard's case along with the motherboard name, or the underside of the motherboard. Most motherboards can be powered off by powering the motherboard's CMOS battery. The serial number may be found on a sticker on the computer's case, or on the underside of the board. For laptops, a serial number is usually located on the label of the power plug. Some chipsets do not have a serial number, the chipset itself is serialized, and the motherboard will have a number put in the chipset's BIOS. In more recent Intel processors (i.e. those starting with P and earlier), the serial number is added to the System Controller
