I tried to register it for a key but the registration window never closes. Is there any particular reason why it is not opening for a registered key. There is a known problem with the buttons in the application window when the menu bar is set to use program icons (other than the program icon itself). A workaround for this is to run the program from Start. Yes, that's a known bug. If you double-click on Charmander from the desktop it works fine. Also, here's some tips. You can use the WinKey + R key combo to bring up the Run dialog box. It's probably better to just use that rather than using the Charmander program. If you are using Chrome as your browser, use a different browser to register the program. A program registration key can be used only once per installation.
