The Skype Microsoft has released a new version of its Skype for Windows 8 and Windows Phone 8 apps for Microsoft Windows. The update is available for users who have the latest software installed on their PCs. New Features of Skype for Windows 8: Skype for Windows 8 offers a new look and feel with new design elements and improved features that make it easier to get your message out, both for online conversations and for face-to-face chats.

- Spelling suggestions: when writing new messages or comments, you can type “f”, and “b”, “ch”, “sh”, “sht” and other short forms to avoid typing the full word. This will show potential spelling suggestions above the keyboard to improve your message
- Highlights: highlights the important words or phrases you type in the message bar to make them easier to find.
- “Reply with smileys” button: now you can add a smiley face, or a hearts symbol, to your messages, or reply, send or create a group chat with someone else.
- Chat is back: a new layout shows your contacts in a conversation view, so you can easily send and receive messages.
- The “x” button to block unwanted contacts: you can block contacts you don’t want to see anymore by tapping the “x” button next to their name in your contact list.
- Quick reply: now you can send your message in one click.
- Snap: to quickly change the width and height, tap the four-directional compass icon at the top of the screen
- Connect to other Skype accounts: tap the menu icon and log into your Skype account.

You can also use voice commands by tapping the mic icon and speaking to Skype.

- The Skype context menu for favorite contacts: if you choose a contact as a contact “favorite”, Skype’s context menu can offer additional quick access to the contact, such as calling a contact from the Skype calling app for your phone.
- Track when you’re active: Skype will notify you if you haven’t sent or received messages for a while, making it easier to get back into the groove.

Skype for Windows 8 is available in the Windows Store for free. If you install Skype on your Windows 8 or Windows Phone 8 system, you can also use it on your desktop using the Skype icon in the Additional Notes: The statistics are created by the game as a result of gameplay and account for multiplayer only. All statistics for each character are recorded and compiled into a database which is updated every time a match is played. These statistics are used to determine a character's specific skill and overall ability, and is the basis of all skill rating calculations for gameplay. They are also used to determine how much a character's individual stats will be altered when they gain a skill via training or leveling. They are the most important
