Andrew Cuomo and other state officials are criticizing a draft of a Republican-sponsored policy to repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act. (Published Tuesday, March 14, 2017) New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo called for an immediate halt to the repeal of the Affordable Care Act, saying it will "rip the safety net" from millions of people and lead to a mass exodus of patients from hospitals and doctors' offices across the state. Cuomo said it is the "ethical responsibility" of any political party that seeks to usher in what he said are "reckless, radical changes" in the health care system to reach out to doctors and patients first. Cuomo, a Democrat, said that the bill would cause chaos in New York by eliminating regulations put in place by President Barack Obama's administration, including the mandate for most people to have insurance and the ban on denying coverage based on pre-existing conditions. "The American health-care system is the most complicated piece of American government, and making it more complicated and creating chaos and worse service is not the answer," Cuomo said in a statement. "I call on the Republicans in Congress to focus on providing good, ethical solutions for our country rather than simply tearing down a single-payer system that is already providing health care to almost 30 million Americans." The ACA, formally known as the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, has been wildly unpopular with GOP lawmakers, who have called it a "government takeover" and a threat to the free-market system. Earlier this month, President Donald Trump and House Republicans unveiled a plan to repeal the law and replace it with more flexible options for health insurance. The proposal has been met with scorn from Democrats and Republicans, who say it would cause massive insurance coverage losses and destabilize the health care system. Sen. Patty Murray, the ranking member of the Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee, said Tuesday that ending the law's mandatory coverage rules would end up shifting insurance costs to millions of people. She called the plan "unethical, would destabilize the market and costs have already been too high to average Americans and seniors." "The @ACA has required most Americans to have insurance," she said. "This bill would turn us back in time to a system where
