In the list of methods that are available in general (which are all or some of these: e.g. summation-by-parts, Euler's method, the Taylor Series, Runge-Kutta, or Arbitrary-order Runge-Kutta, Backward-Euler, explicit Midpoint, the trapezoidal rule, etc), is there any easy way to know which types are most appropriate in a given scenario? In particular, is there any easy way to know when it's better to use a Runge-Kutta method instead of a Euler or Backward-Euler method, or vice-versa, and a Taylor-series approximations instead of a Summation-by-parts, or vice-versa, and so on? A: I would suggest you start with this reference, which explains and compares the different methods on a rigorous basis 1cb139a0ed
