Xforce Keygen 64-bit Jboss Developer Plugin 4.9.2 CRACK.Q: Javascript multiple array in an array I have a multidimensional array called resultArray, which is essentially a JSON object that has been returned from a PUT api request. I can then loop through the resultArray and look for objects with a specific key-value pair (key -> value) and output the data within those objects, like so: `foreach ($resultArray as $result) { echo $result->project_name; }` This is working fine, but now I want to do something similar for a date like so: `$data[$result['created']] = $result['updated'];` The result I'm trying to achieve should look something like this: `[ 'date' => '2016-05-25T22:12:00', 'project_name' => 'Project X', 'project_owner' => 'John Smith', 'project_desc' => 'Description', 'id' => '12345' ]` When I try and run this it just breaks the code. How do I populate an array where the key is the date and the value is just the value of the date, without the time? A: I would suggest exploding the date into an array and then comparing. For example: `$arr = array( 'date' => '2016-05-25T22:12:00', 'project_name' => 'Project X', 'project_owner' => 'John Smith', 'project_desc' => 'Description', 'id' => 3da54e8ca3`
